Before you, I thought love was only a myth.
Being in a place held together by bonds of light I could never see.
But then you came into my life and opened my eyes to what’s true.
Experience love with someone like you.
You unearthed a side to me I never knew of.
A special place in my heart awakened by the essence of your soul.
I never thought something like this could possibly exist, but now I know love is real.
When first getting to know you, it all seems normal and simple.
But it was as if something began to take over the course of our paths in life.
Our souls were brought together out of nowhere, and my heart rose out of its grave.
The loneliness felt within me is shattering, and the feelings of joy were taking its place.
While I lay myself to sleep, all I think of is you.
I cannot sleep while you are in my mind.
My spirit longs to be with yours.
The bright stars of the midnight sky shine deeply into you, and their light shows the love in your eyes.
How nice it would be to hold you in my arms.
To feel your heart beating close to mine.
Knowing that soul mates can be real, knowing this feeling is so right.
But something crucial happened to our lives.
We got separated by unnatural circumstances.
Lightning struck and all seemed lost with confusion.
A jolt ran through me like nothing I ever felt before.
Where could this have come from?
My heart was broken.
Life got so different after that.
The pain, the sorrow, the loneliness enough to consume a person.
Then a savior came along with ties to the other.
She came from a distance, knowing not what she would find.
It’s like we swept each other off our feet, without knowing why or how.
